Listened to part of a speech and received a copy of the whole given by the executive vice-president of Xerox Corp. at a Rochester, N. Y., meeting of the National Newspaper Association two weeks ago.

It rang familiar in several parts. So I looked back to a copy of an article by 112 ol' Mizzou published, discussing computers and offset. It was written in February, 1970, and published by UofMo Journalism Alumni News in February, 1971.

A COMPARISON. . .

Said Raymond A. Hay, executive vice president of Xerox Corp:

"In your critical segment of the vast communications industry, new technologies already evident may be among the most significant and far-reaching changes facing any business today. The most dramatic of these new technologies -- the application of electronics to composition and printing -- presages a revolution of the same magnitude brought about by the invention of moveable type.

"There have been relatively few significant new technologies in the newspaper business since the introduction of the linotype and the rotary press. There have been important developments, of course, particularly in offset printing and the use of computers in typesetting. . But these appear small compared to tools and techniques on the horizon. Technology could very well revolutionize traditional concepts of the functions and practices of newspapers.

"Communications experts are predicting there will be broad usage of two major technologies by the 1990's: One is high-speed electronic composing machines, coupled with electro-static printing systems. These will be used mostly by high volume publishers, although some applications are sure to be used in areas of publishing that you represent.

"The second technology will involve facsimile newspapers produced right in the home, or in a neighborhood communications center. Both systems can be faster and cheaper than current methods."

112-112-112

Published Missouri Alumini News, Page 6, Feb., 1971:

"It is a long step from an "apronful of type" and an old handpress, perhaps like the old Ben Franklin in the Journalism School Museum, to milli-second computer printout. It is more like a light-year leap, a leap this industry is compelled to take. . .

"The industry looks to technology for solution. If we find it, we continue to produce better newspapers.

"Offset production, central plants for smaller dailies and weeklies and computers are a modern means. Electrostatic printing, even electronic transmission to home receivers are in experimental stage or newly patented. . .

"By telephone communication, it is possible small newspapers would all but be set electronically in a central plant. Tape perforators would be the only evidence in the small newspaper of any relationship to newspaper production.

"It is possible, within 20 years, electro-static printing will supplant the offset press, which has surely supplanted the letterpress. Exit the camera, the plate-burner.

"Newspapers used to be slow to change. The offset revocation is the first major departure in production since the rotary letterpress and Mergenthaler's linotype."

112-112-112

Coincidence? Perhaps. You decide. I'll live with a few delusions for awhile. Don't know why, but such a thing has happened before.

Council Airs Long Agenda

OPERATION REST STOP at Cameron's City Park was a welcome sight for travelers over the Fourth of July holiday as evidenced by the 1,023 motorists who registered between Friday and Monday evening. Most enjoyed a cool drink or coffee offered by Boy Scout Troop 52 while others simply enjoyed the parks shade trees and play equipment.

Cameron City Council meeting in regular session Tuesday evening heard the second reading of an ordinance granting franchise to a TV cable company and discussed filling in the ravine at City Park.

The franchise provides for the company to offer cable service in the city within 18 months of start of construction. No date was set for the start.

In discussing filling the ravine, Streets Supt. Jim Hale and Mayor E. A. Perrin noted that some concrete work must be done to handle water drainage before the fill is put in. Work will cost an estimated $1,600.

Plans call for rubble from the urban renewal demolition to be used as fill.

In other business, Council:

Agreed to start paving work on North Jackson and Austin streets;

Authorized Police Chief Felipe Martinez to advertise for bids on new tires for one of the police cars;

Awarded a bid to Anderle Lumber Co. for building an addition to the city jail;

Authorized Mayor Perrin to sign the contract for base work on the public library;

Discussed the placement of mobile homes in the city and agreed the zoning commission should study the ordinance for possible regulation;

Discussed bringing suit against a property owner who refused to pay paving assessment;

Agreed that the only recourse open to residents who object to fireworks is signing a nuisance complaint;

And Mayor Perrin told councilmen the city must appoint a full time inspector for enforcement of the housing code in order to have the city's workable plan re-certified.

Adult Ed Program Enrolls 500 Pupils In Five Counties

Some 500 adults were enrolled in the 1970-71 Basic Adult and Continuing Education program in Milam, Falls, Robertson, Burleson, and Lee Counties, according to Max McClaren, Milam County school superintendent, whose office is fiscal agent for the program.

Fifty-four students recently passed their General Educational Development Test, which is the equivalent of earning a high school diploma.

"The program has shown phenominal progress during the year," McClaren said.

The GED tests were administered to 60 students in June, 31 at Lexington for the south section of the five-county program, and 29 at Marlin for the north section. Fifty-four passed all five sections of the test. Only two students failed the complete test. The remaining four students passed 40 to 80 percent of the test.

Mrs. Ruth Sharp, Yoe High School counselor, administered the test with the help of Jack Ruzicka. Mrs. Sharp became affiliated with the program in the spring, having worked in the ABE program at several East Texas schools.

Time Change For Tennis

Tennis lessons will start at 7:30 p.m. each Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday instead of 6:30, according to Frank Luecke, instructor. Lessons are held on the courts at Yoe High.

Housing Industry Gets $673,400 Boost

Milam County's housing industry received a $673,400 boost during the past year from new construction and improvements financed by Farmers Home Administration loans.

Some 66 families secured approval of loans for new homes, and ten families received loans for needed repairs and improvements, according to Henry Ivey, county FHA supervisor.

Also, approval was granted and construction started on a rural water system, the Southwest Milam Water Supply Corporation, which will initially serve 447 families in Southwest Milam County with plans underway for extensions to eventually serve 700 families.

In addition FHA, the rural credit arm of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, has helped the local economy with loans to about 35 Milam County farmers to finance farming operations and land purchases. Many of the operating loans were made possible by subordinations in which the funds were advanced by local banks and the PCA.

The agency's wide range of services added a record $1,722,600 to resources available for housing, farming and community families in this county last year, Ivey noted.

"At year's end, the outstanding loan total in the county had climbed to approximately $3,800,000 and was providing direct benefits to about 1900 families in the area," he said.

Meeting Set For Ballfield Plans

A planning and organizational meeting for new baseball fields will be held Friday at 8 p.m. in the Methodist Fellowship Hall.

Anyone interested in the baseball program, and especially parents of boys playing baseball and girls playing softball, are urged to attend.

Fund raising ideas will be sought, and plans for the new fields will be discussed.

18-Year-Olds Can Now Vote

Young people, between the ages of 18 and 21 who have registered to vote may now vote in all elections -- federal, state, county, city, or other political subdivision.

Crops Tour Set Monday

The annual field crops tour will start at 8 a.m. from the Post Office in Cameron on July 12, according to County Agent J. D. Moore.

Greenbug damage to maize crops in the county will probably be the most important topic to be discussed on the tour, Moore said.

"Because of the need for all farmers to become familiar with this insect Dr. Cliff Hoelscher, area entomologist will discuss this topic at 8 a.m. across from the Post Office," he stated.

Affected plants along with the insects will be used to help identify the problem. All grain farmers are urged to attend the discussion.

Other tour stops will show trace mineral soil additives test, shredded and unshredded hail damaged maize, and maize and cotton variety tests.

The tour will end by noon with a barbecue meal. All interested persons are invited to attend the tour.

COMMENT: New Services, Facilities, Recreation For Youth

A STAFF REVIEW

After urban renewal, Cameronites would like to see new services and facilities following the example of a new downtown.

That is the direction pointed by the "open end" comments of a Herald survey returned by those filling it out. Significance is in the repetition if interest in youth and new ideas than in numbers of surveys returned.

The sense of the comments also follows much discussion among present Cameron leadership and among residents who are voicing more interest in schools, city and county government, appearance of Cameron and need for recreation, school and other community developments.

Some of the comments are apparently based on disenchantment with the community, but touch on lack of opportunity for youth in employment and new housing, lack of recreation facilities and need for the more obvious things like downtown cleanup.

Need for more trained medical doctors and dentists often is mentioned.

Some ignore what urban renewal intends to do downtown, but press for more street paving, better shopping facilities, a downtown theatre, a city recreation department, development of industry which will mean higher pay scales, to name a few.

A typical column of comments on the positive side of needs for Cameron goes like this:

QUOTE:
1. A downtown theatre
2. New high school and gym
3. A city recreation department to operate recreation programs for all age groups.
4. Enforce building and housing codes
5. Actively recruit high class industry, not just selectively recruit those that will keep the pay scale in Cameron low. END OF QUOTE.

If you failed to fill out one of these Community Attitude Surveys, you may want to find a copy of your Herald of July 1 and send in your ideas.

A resume of the 60 questions printed out for measuring basic services of the community will be compiled and published in a later edition. But back to the open-end questions.

Public officials came in for only a few comments, generally suggesting younger ideas or in the case of the City, a city manager to manage its day-to-day affairs.

RECREATION NEED

The open enders seemed preoccupied with the need for recreation. Listen:

"More baseball and softball fields for young people -- male and female."

"Not enough fields for baseball and other outdoor sports."

"Parks and picnic areas could stand improvement."

"Support a badly needed youth center with a full-time paid director (qualified)."

"I think the community needs a good youth center."

"Cameron needs more than just a once-a-year "Folk Fete". All this is fine, but old Cameron needs a new and entirely different outlook if it's really going to stay alive and not die."

"The younger set, why not open a picture show downtown, if not for but one day. (Sat) The kids need this even if the old folks don't."

"1. A theater"
"5. A complete summer recreation program."
"1. More programs offered for children during summer."
"2. Teen-age interest groups stimulated."
"A downtown theatre."

"A city recreation department."
"Improve city park to make it show place. It is not something to be proud of from maintenance standpoint."

"1. Need downtown theatre and improve on outdated movies."
"4. More recreation for children."
"4. Recreation opportunities."

PUBLIC SERVICE

"Need more paving of streets."

"Build better schools that will meet the needs of our growing youth and to insure their safety. Also a stronger police force is needed."

"Day care center needed."
"Water fluoridation."

"Improvement of downtown appearance."
"Community involvement."

"Improved school system: a new school superintendent with up-to-date and innovative ideas and with a diplomatic attitude toward the community in which he works; and more responsibility from the school board, administrator and faculty to inform the community of the school system and its operation."

"More efficient city government by hiring a qualified city manager."

"I thing a day-care program should be started."

"Welfare services should be better."

"A new building instead of the old Ada Henderson School."

"To have a younger person or persons look at Cameron from their eyes instead of the people who have lived here for ages and want no improvement."

"Better housing."
"More progressive school program."

"A single tax agency."
"West 12th Street needs to be paved very badly."

"General clean-up for the entire community."
"Houses should meet a standard."

"Destroy all burned down houses."

"Form or appoint bi-racial groups to work within the schools and community projects."

"Need more doctors and dentists."
"Need more good carpenters and painter."

"Better police protection."
"Better and more control of drugs."
"Merchants need to enlarge their stock. . . ."

INVOLVEMENT

"Work on community attitude that "you get what you pay for". And if the people are not willing to spend time or money they will be able to improve Cameron."

"Establish better relationship among all races."

"Sell more people in getting involved in community action -- sell Cameron and keep selling."

INDICATION ONLY

These are some of the typical comments readers have written on the surveys returned. No scientific validity in sampling is claimed, but the repetition of the needs of the Cameron area is consistent and in line with studies by city, school and other community service agencies in the Cameron and Milam area.

You, the reader, may have further comments. These only suggest what people are thinking. And they suggest you probably see similar needs.

Your Herald will tabulate and publish the survey of 60 questions in the "Community Attitude Survey" in a later edition.

Are you participating as well as commenting?

Let The Dust Fly!

This morning, July 8, Cameron Urban Renwal begins the final process of one of the significant developments in city history.

Bids will be opened from eight demolition companies for the start of destruction of 31 downtown buildings, which will clear the Mall-parking block and numerous others scattered around the nine-block renewal area.

This development has been slow in coming, almost lost, its very slowness detrimental to the progress of the community. Response to the Herald's attitude survey shows that cleanup is one of the obvious needs here, but until urban cleanup downtown, the example is not big enough.

It should be big enough when 31 buildings, most of them long past usefulness, too long unremodeled or updated, come down. And those other buildings in the renewal area will be remodeled or updated to match the openness of a new downtown.

The demolition will probably start later this month. And a lot of cries of "doom" will be lost forever in the dust and debris of old coming down for new.

Attachment to a place or a building is understandable and perhaps even shrewd. But what loss has been suffered because we hold onto the past of a building or an idea or a principle that has become prejudicial to survival, let alone progress?

Let the dust fly! Were the sledges available, we would join in the demolition of an area which, for too long a time, left the central part of this community destitute of hope for too long a look at empty, decaying buildings.

A Supreme Court moving to the right last week approved by 6-3 publication of the Pentagon Papers in the left-leaning New York Times and Washington Post.

The Gallup Poll showed 58 percent of the American people favored the press' right to publish sensitive public information, even when it has not yet been declassified by the executive branch, which, of course, is clearly affected by public reaction to content.

Damage has been done to the confidence of the American people in their central government, particularly in the interaction between the military and the executive elements of government. Result will be a faster return of troops from South Vietnam.

But the public's right to know, as one man put it, "what the hell is going on" is obviously paramount in this test between government and its "fourth estate."

An injunction, this decision says, will not still the presses any more. Only war secrets of current and imminent danger to troop movements and such critical materials escape press preview.

Administration officials point out the liabilities of too much right to publish. The responsibility is great, but the necessity of the public right to know is greater. That is, if we still presume to be a democracy.

This Court decision is the second in recent months allowing the press to publish almost at will. A prior decision this spring allows wider discretion on what is understood to be a "public figure" or individual open to public evaluation, even of his private life. It further extends privilege to the press on publishing information on candidates for public office, people even remote to public life, but somehow coming into public notice in the news.

Coupled with the Pentagon Papers decision, these pronouncements show a more conservative Court, usually voting 5-4 as opposed to 5-4 liberal edges two years ago, favoring a freer, responsible press.

The Supreme Court is sticking admirably to Constitution and principle for press freedom, regardless of liberal or conservative tack.

And this regard for basic freedom is what people desire for themselves as individuals, for a press cursed and vilified all the way to highest Court approval and for a nation strong enough to vent its feelings short of revolution, and sensible enough to see the limits of government secrecy.

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editar:

According to an article I read yesterday while resting my brain from all the secret documents the newspapers have been filled with lately, scientists have been working on a new chemical they claim will improve man's memory.

They haven't tried it on people yet, but they say it may be possible to develop a chemical that'll perk up the memory section of the brain and enable a man to remember far more than he now does.

If there ever was a piece of information that ought to have been classified as Top Secret and not to be published for at least a hundred years, that should have been it.

That sort of chemical, if it works, will wreck most governments of the world. What politician could stay in office more than one term if people remembered today what he said six months ago? From the Peloponnesian War to modern times, how many peace candidates have wound up as elected war leaders? Don't ask me because I forget.

If taxes had been reduced every time a cut has been promised, a man could live mighty cheap just on pleasant memories.

If Congress is smart it'll ban this new memory chemical before it gets out of the test tube.

A forgetful electorate is the key to a happy officialdom, and the same goes for most marriages, all human relations and a good many children.

Other people's forgetting is one of the handiest things ever invented to keep a man going.

Those scientists are working on the wrong chemical. What I want is one that'll blot out, not freshen, some of the recollections some of neighbors have.

You show me a man who can remember everything and I'll show you a man who knows more than he should about you and me.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Taxpayers, Homeowners Face More Rising Costs

(Editor's Note-- Bill Boykin replaces Vern Sanford as columnist of this weekly Texas Press Association feature. Sanford retired July 1 after serving TPA for almost 24 years. This column solicits questions about state government news and information. Address your questions to this newspaper, and they will be forwarded to the Austin office.)

July 1 turned out to be a costly date for Texans. Not only did the nearly $1 million-a-day ($604 million biennially) tax bill take effect, but property owners got notice of hikes of up to 25 per cent in their insurance rates. And just the day before (see below) the State Insurance Board staff recommended an average 2.8 per cent increase in private auto insurance coverage effective September 1.

Tax bill raises the general sales tax from 3.25 per cent to four per cent statewide (five per cent in many cities which also levy a local sales tax); adds three cents a pack to cigartte taxes; increases liquor tax about seven cents a fifth; raises beer tax a fraction of a cent a bottle; jumps sales tax on new cars to four per cent (bringing in car rentals) and jacks up corporate franchise levy $1.25 per $1,000 of capital.

A 10 per cent tax on mixed drink sales went into effect last month.

A new kind of "surtax" takes effect September 1. It will cost moving traffic law violators $2.50; other miseameanor violators tried in county court, $5, and those convicted of felony, $10.

Raise in homeowners' and other kinds of property insurance came without formal announcement other than notices to local agents.

Homeowners' rates rose 25 per cent along the seacoast (hit by Hurricane Celia last August) and in tornado-struck north - northwest territory of the state. Central area homeowners; rate jumped 22.1 per cent, too.

Extended coverage of all classes went up 25 per cent on the coast, 24.5 per cent in north-northwest and 19.7 per cent in the central area. Extended coverage for dwellings is up 25 per cent on the coast and north-northwest, 19.3 per cent in central part of the state.

Fire insurance coverage increases 5.2 per cent -- or 7.1 per cent for dwellings.

AUTO INSURANCE UP AGAIN?

State Insurance Board staff recommended an average 2.8 per cent statewide passenger car insurance rate hike effective September 1.

Board heard recommendations at a public hearing here June 30 and indicated a decision will be made about mid-August.

Industry, which won a 14 per cent boost in rates January 1 after asking 27.7 per cent, is asking 9.8 per cent increase (average statewide) on passenger car coverage.

Seven state legislators and the state AFL-CIO president argued that a decline in accidents justifies lowering rather than raising rates. Since rates are fixed by territories, not statewide, some areas under Board staff recommendations would receive reductions in certain lines of coverage.

MORE WELFARE WOES LOOM

A top court decision declaring needy non-citizens eligible for assistance, threat of increasing finance burdens from federal legislation and rising medical costs put the State Board of Public Welfare on red alert again last week.

Board was told the federal bill would "save" the state $57.1 million in existing payments -- but might double the number of Texans eligible for medical care benefits (which will cost $135.7 million next year.)

Supreme Court decision on aliens would add 20,000 to state welfare rolls overnight at a cost of more than $10 million a year, Deputy Welfare Commissioner Herbert Wilson estimated.

New Welfare Commissioner Raymond Vowell said negotiations are under way to place limits on runaway medical care costs, while maintaining adequate services.

18-YEAR-OLDS CAN VOTE

Texas' 18-19 - and 20 - year -olds who are registered to vote can participate in any election starting this month, Secretary of State Martin Dies Jr. points out.

Ratification by the 38th state of the teen-age voter constitutional amendment placed it into effect immediately, Dies said.

Any election which is now in progress "must allow those 18, 19, and 20 years old to vote if they are presently registered," Dies, chief election officer for Texas, advised.

Young voters not now registered must wiat until registration period reopens October 1.

COURTS SPEAK

First case in which the Nixon administration sought to force busing in the desegregation of public schools, a federal judge at Austin gave Austin schools and U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare until July 16 to come up with a compromise plan "minimizing busing." Court found no official segregation against Austin Mexican - American pupils.

Third Court of Civil Appeals here ordered a new trial of the case involving authority of former Sharpstown State Bank president to check out bonds offered as security on a $470,000 loan. Now-defunct bank brought suit to recover its $470,000.

Both State Supreme Court and Court of Criminal Appeals did not meet last Wednesday, due to State Bar convention in Dallas.

AG OPINIONS

Texas Water Quality Board may contract with the federal government for increased percentage limitations on federal grants for waste treatment facilities with approval of the governor, Atty. Gen. Crawford C. Martin has held.

In other recent opinions, Martin concluded that:

* Regulations adopted by Texas Department of Public Safety Director consistent with safety standards of U.S. Department of Transportation for movement of hazardous materials can be enforced by criminal penalty provisions. Legislature validly delegated to DPS authority to prescribe duties and ascertain conditions under which law on hazardous substances may operate to impose criminal penalty.

* County may deposit all tax money collected in one general fund without regard to purpose or source of each tax, but bonds proceeds may not be deposited in general fund.

* Sellers of "earmolds" to individuals for use with hearing aids is not exempt from the requirement of being licensed by Texas State Board of Examiners in Fitting and Dispensing of Hearing Aids.

* State Comptroller is not authorized to issue a duplicate warrant for payment of unemployment compensation benefits to initial payee more than year after the original date of issuance.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

U.S. COMMUNISTS BUILD TROJAN HORSE

REP. JOHN G. SCHMITZ (Calif.) ". . .George Dimitroff said at the Seventh World Congress Communist International in 1935:

'Comrads, you remember the ancient tale of the capture of Troy. Troy was inaccessable to the armies attacking her, thanks to her impregnable walls. And the attacking army, after suffering many sacrifices, was unable to achieve victory until, with the aid of the famous Trojan horse it managed to penetrate to the very heart of the enemy's camp. We should not be shy about using the same tactics.'

"An American Communist by the name of Gil Greene sat in the Moscow auditorium and listened attentively to these words of the Secretary General of the Communist International. Greene was attending the Seventh Congress of the Comintern in his capacity as secretary of the Young Communist League of the United States.

"In the ensuing years, Greene helped implement and refine Trojan horse strategy of the Communist Party of the United States -- CPUSA. . .

"Recent testimony given before the House Committee on Internal Security has clearly shown the CPUSA utilization of another in a long line of organizational weapons, the PEOPLE'S COALITION FOR PEACE AND JUSTICE -- PCPJ. The PCPJ was one of the two organizations responsible for the recent demonstrations in the Nation's Capital.

"Expert witnesses described for House committee members and the press the origin and leadership of the PEOPLE'S COALITION FOR PEACE AND JUSTICE (PCPJ.) Communist Party members, they testified, have moved behind a confusing succession of organizational changes. . .

"Party members provided the mortar which held the movement against U.S. efforts in Southeast Asia together and on course. They represented the common thread running through what might appear superficially to be unrelated organizations. . .

"As a member of the House Committee on Internal Security, I will be doing my best to see that this information is brought to the attention of the American People so that Gil Greene, and others like him will not be able to run DIMITROFF'S TROJAN HORSE through the streets of this Nation."

A GRASSROOTS COMMENT

The Soviet Union has rejected the idea of coexistance. Our Defense capability if maintained, promises at least a military standoff. The Hearings before the House Committee on Internal Security would indicate that the U.S. Communists will take full advantage of every American political blunder.

The Communist Trojan Horse is under construction. It's not a do-it-yourself project, it's being erected by professionals.-J.C.

Lybia Faces Major Domestic Problems

By Ibrahim Noori
Reuter Correspondent

TRIPOLI, Libya

Oil has given Libya new wealth, but the country still faces major domestic problems.

Government leader Muammar Gaddafi says thousands of people are suffering from tuberculosis and other diseases and cannot obtain treatment, and thousands more are homeless.

"There are 35,000 Libyans suffering from tuberculosis. They are not in hospital, but walk the streets," he told a public rally recently.

There were scores of endemic diseases afflicting Libyans who were cared for by neither doctors nor government officials, he said.

"This nation is living in huts or old houses, there are also 35,000 people without a home," said Gaddafi, Chairman of the Libyan Revolutionary Command Council.

Until the discovery of oil here in 1958, this desert country in North Africa had virtually no resources for development and improvement of living conditions.

With a population of 1.8 million Libya now has an annual oil revenue of about 2.4 billion dollars.

The revolutionary government which came to power by overthrowing the monarchy in September 1969, has set aside about 816 million dollars for development projects in the 1971-72 fiscal year.

The allocation provides for about 47.3 million dollars for expanding health services and about 87.8 million dollars for housing.

But Gaddafi said the government must allocate about 111.4 million dollars annually to build 10,000 houses every year over the next five or six years.

"If we realize this it would indeed be a great revolutionary deed," he declared.

Libya, although financially rich, is extremely poor in skilled manpower that could undertake development of the country without foreign expertise.

"For the past few months we have been searching in Libya for someone who can build even 100 houses. The contractors we hear about cannot even build a school or house or pave a road," The Libyan leader admitted.

He said the government wanted to build schools, roads, hospitals and other projects, "but we find the 90 per cent of the nation is illiterate."

"We even lack nurses. How can we run tens of hospitals with only 47 doctors. We need hundreds of doctors and millions of pounds to build hospitals to care for all the people," Gaddafi said.

According to Health Minister Meftah Al-Usta Omar, bids will be invited shortly for building two 1,080-bed hospitals in Tripoli and Benghazi.

One of the hospitals will be the nucleus of a medical school, he said.

Government clinics also will open in main cities and towns.

In the housing sector, 10,650 units, of three to five rooms each, are to be built by a government housing corporation established recently, according to Housing and Public Utilities Minister Imhemed Imgaryef.

Retiree Searches For Family Tree

Dalton E. White of Whitehouse, Texas, is searching for information on the descendants of Joseph C. White, a prominent farmer of Jones Prairie during the 1800s.

White said he is a retired school teacher and is interested in tracing the history of his family, especially after 1837, when Robert White moved to Texas, and family members settled in Walker, Leon, and Milam Counties.

Anyone having information is asked to write D. E. White, P. O. Box 334, Whitehouse, Texas 75791.

ANTI-FIGHT PILL

New Brunswick, N.J. Reuter - Researchers at Rutgers University here are working on a pill to curb the aggressive instincts aroused by drink. But the head of the study, Dr. Malcolm McDonnell, says that so far experiments have been confined to cats.

TRAVELING DOG

Marseilles, France, Reuter - When Jean-Marie Valembois moved 940 miles from northwest France to the town of Chateaurenard near here six months ago, he left his dog with a relative. But the Alsatian, Blacky, walked to find his master and Valembois discovered him on a street in the town the other day.

4,000 YEAR OLD TREE

Taipei, Formosa, Reuter - A giant tree estimated to be more than 4,000 years old has been found in central Formosa, the Central News Agency announced. The agency said the tree is as high as a 20-story building and is still living. It takes more than a dozen adults with arms fully stretched to encircle it, the agency added.

County Agent's Notes

Greenbug Found In Area Maize

By J. D. Moore

Greenbug Infestations in Maize are reported moderate to damaging numbers in the Thorndale, San Gabriel areas. Also, damaging numbers have been treated in the west part of the county.

The greenbug was first described in Italy in 1852, was recorded in the U.S. in Virginia in 1882. Currently considered the most destructive pest of small grains in the central and southwestern states, greenbugs in 1 year can cause loss of more than 50 million bushels of small grain.

Texas recorded t first outbreak on small grains in 1891. Damaging infestations have since occured in 1901, 1906-07, 1916 and 1942, when over 61 million bushels of grain were lost.

Damaging greenbug infestations do not occur at regular intervals or in any predictable pattern. In 1968, severe greenbug outbreaks occured for the first time on grain sorghum crops.

Host plants - wheat, oats, barley and rye normally are preferred host plants. Although previously observed on grain sorghum, the greenbug was not considered a major sorghum pest until 1968. Greenbugs have oversummered on western wheat grass, as well as other grasses in the Texas panhandle, for at least 10 years. Within the past few years, light populations of greenbugs have been observed on Johnsongrass.

Description - The greenbug, an aphid approximately 1/16 inch long, is light green. Usually these aphids have a dark green stripe down the back, prominent at maturity.

Life History - Greenbugs give birth to living young and all are females. Optimum temperature for greenbug reproduction is approximately 75 degrees F. under optimum conditions, newly born greenbugs begin reproduction in about 7 days. One female can produce about 80 offspring during a 25 day reproduction period.

Natural enemies - Greenbug populations are reduced by several insect enemies, including lady beetles, damsel bugs, lace wing larvae and syrphid fly larvae. Greenbugs also are parasitized by several tiny wasp species.

Greenbug controls - When to treat - Plant emergence to about 6 inches high, treat when visible damage of colonies are seen. Larger plants to pre-boot stage, treat before any leaves are killed. Pre-boot and larger plants, treat when numbers are sufficient to cause death of more than two normal-sized leaves.

Materials to use - Trithion, Systox, Diazionon, Parathion and Malathion all used at 1 pint per acre. Disyston used at 1/3 to 2/3 pints per acre.

Do not use Methyl Parathion on grain sorghum.

Leaflets are available at the county agents office on greenbug control.

Top Cotton Yields Sought

"Better cotton yields for profits and markets" in 1971 is the theme for an all out Beltwide campaign to aid the cotton industry.

Fred C. Elliott, Extension cotton specialist, said the objective is to increase cotton yields to the maximum profitable level, using recommended practices for each producing area to increase producer income.

In view of the present market situation, he added, a major goal is to stabilize the current competitive position of the fiber crop and build a base for market expansion.

Elliott noted for five consecutive years, more cotton has been sold than produced and it now appears the carryover by the end of July will be no more than four and a quarter to four and a half million bales, the lowest in 20 years. The same situation exists worldwide, he said.

Although no ruinous shortage has yet developed, the uncertainty about next season's supply has already affected the cotton market, he said. Some mills, he noted, because of the uncertainty of adequate supplies of cotton, are shifting to blends rather than continuing to use 100 percent cotton despite the strong demand for all-cotton fabrics. This shift is being made to conserve cotton supplies.

The strong demand for denims, corduroys, print-cloths and cotton knits over the last year or so have caused a turn-around in the outlook for cotton and we cannot afford to lose the gains made, emphasized Elliott. The strong demand affords a real opportunity for grower profit.

Since cotton is now planted, the increase in production must come from better management, including insect and weed control, cultural practices, wise use of irrigation and improved harvesting methods, the specialist said.

Too, he noted, ground-soaking general rains over the state would give a real boost to cotton production prospects.

To further the campaign in Texas, Elliott said, meetings on July 8 and 9 are scheduled for Lubbock and Dallas. The Lubbock meeting is set for 1:30 p.m. at the South Plains Electric Cooperative Auditorium and the 10 a.m. Dallas meeting will be at the Baker Hotel.

ASCS NEWS

By Douglas Buck

Wheat producers will receive $1.20 per bushel in preliminary payment on their 1971 crop, as announced by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The preliminary payment will be made as soon after July 1 as possible and amounts to 75 percent of the estimated face value of domestic wheat certificates. The final face value of the certificates are the difference between 100 percent on parity on July 1 of this year and the national average wheat price received by farmers from July 1 through November. Final payment will be made after Dec. 1.

Preliminary payments under the feed grain and cotton programs were previously announced.

These preliminary payments, which represent part of the total payments due farmers under 1971 programs, are made to reimburse farmers for the costs of idling productive cropland acres and to help assure a return to farming sufficient to maintain the productivity of U.S. agriculture.

Corn producers will receive a preliminary payment of 32 cents per bushel, and sorghum producers 29 cents per bushel, based on this year's 20 percent set aside requirement. The payment is calculated by multiplying the rate per bushel by the yield established for the farm times one-half the corn and grain sorghum base. Participants in the 1971 feed grain program are guaranteed a national average of $1.35 per bushel on the production from half their corn base and $1.24 per bushel for sorghum.

Cotton producers will receive a preliminary payment of 15 cents per pound. Payment is made on a quantity of upland cotton determined by multiplying the acreage planted within the farm base acreage allotment by the payment yield established for the farm. Participants in the 1971 cotton program are guaranteed a national average of the higher of 65 percent of parity or 35 cents per pound.

If market conditions are such that final payments are due under the law to feed grain and cotton producers, they will be made for cotton after Jan. 1, 1972 and for feed grains after Mar. 1, 1972. Refund will not be required if the preliminary payment proves to be higher than the full payment due the farmer.

Preliminary payments under the three major commodity programs will be made to about 2,035,000 farmers and will total approximately $2.5 billion, USDA reported.

FB Couples Attending Conference

The Milam County Farm Bureau is sponsoring two couples, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Grothe of Minerva and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jungmann of Buckholts, to the area Leadership Conference for young farmers and ranchers July 8-9 at Athens, according to Edwin Lehmann of Buckholts, president of the local organization.

Conducted by the Texas Farm Bureau, the two-day meeting is one of three such conferences being held over Texas this summer. Purpose of the session is to provide an opportunity for young farmers and ranchers to understand the objectives, programs and operations of the Farm Bureau.

Discussion topics include history and purpose of Farm Bureau, legislation, commodity activities and marketing programs, and the role of young farmers and ranchers in the county organization. TFB personnel will conduct the discussion sessions.

The area leadership conferences resulted from a recommendation made to the TFB board of directors in April by the organization's young farmer and rancher advisory committee.

Use Special Care For Yard, Lawn

The prolonged drouth conditions throughout Texas calls for gardeners to use special care in cultural practices that can conserve moisture and reduce the amount of irrigation water needed for lawns and woody ornamentals in the landscape.

Through waterings and judicious applications of fertilizer, insecticides, or fungicides are two steps that can help gardeners through the hot, dry weather, according to Everett Janne, Extension landscape horticulturist.

When applying irrigation water, do a thorough job, soaking the soil to a depth of six to 10 inches, he advises. If the soil surface is sloping or is compacted, water must be applied at a slower rate to prevent run off.

Deep watering of landscape plants tends to encourage deep root penetration that ultimately provides a greater moisture supply for the plant. Janne warns that frequent, light waterings encourages shallow root systems and once this happens, it is difficult to bring plants through extended drouth periods without considerable damage.

Fertilizer, insecticides, or fungicides should never be applied unless there is moisture in the soil because severe foliage burn can occur if these materials are applied when the soil is dry. Janne says that any fertilizer applications should be followed with a thorough watering.

Another way to conserve moisture is to be sure all flower and shrub borders have a mulch at least two inches thick. A good mulch reduces evaporation from the soil surface, keeps the soil cooler, reduces weed growth, and cuts down on soil cultivation. Shredded pine bark, pine straw, wood chips or other readily available organic matter will make an excellent mulch.

In caring for the lawn, Janne adds that raising the height of the lawnmower blade one-fourth to one-half of an inch during the hot weather will increase the length of the leaf blade, providing shade and reducing the water needed by the grass plant.

SCREWWORM ALERT

A confirmed screwworm case in Bowie County, near Texarkana, should alert stockmen to the need for continuous checking of all animal wounds. It is the first case in the area since 1962. The officials of the eradication program are giving the case close attention and hot - spotting the area with sterile flies flown from the Mission Laboratory. Ground spraying of herds will also be done. Stockmen are urged to send a sample of any worms found in animal wounds to the Mission Lab for positive identification. Local county agents can supply kits for mailing the larvae samples.

TEXAS HOG NUMBERS UP

Hogs on Texas farms on June 1 totaled 1,656,000 head, up 51 percent from a year ago, says the Texas Crop & Livestock Reporting Service. Nationally, hog numbers were up only 2 percent. Breeding hogs in Texas were up 43 percent but nationally, the number was down by 8 percent.

Moon Landing Site Could Be Hostile To Apollo 15

By Peter Mosley

Reuter Correspondent

HOUSTON

The target chosen for Apollo 15's landing on the moon in July might turn out to be impossibly hostile, littered with rocks as big as houses.

Nobody knows with absolute certainty because the best photographs of the site at the edge of the moon's rugged Appenine Mountains have a resolution of only 20 meters, which means that objects smaller than about 65 feet in diameter won't show up.

For previous Apollo missions, planners had one-meter resolution photographs to work with, which revealed objects bigger than three-feet wide.

Is NASA, the U.S. space agency, taking a large gamble?

"Well, I think you're right," said scientist-astronaut Joe Allen, mission scientist for Apollo 15, when asked this at a recent press conference here. "But I think very definitely it's worth the risk."

The comparatively low resolution photography of the site "does not give one a warm feeling," Allen admitted.

But he noted that NASA has high resolution pictures of the areas just north and just south of the target and these show no evidence of large boulders.

"And we think we understand enough about Lunar Maria (flat "sea" areas) now to say that they should not change their boulder population drastically over a few kilometers," he added.

"The site was selected because it is geologically more interesting than landing sites in the high resolution photography," he said.

"So we pay a certain price to get to the location of higher scientific interests," added Allen, a doctor of physics from Yale University.

Dr. Robin Brett, a leading NASA scientist, denied that the space agency was taking any sort large gamble. "I don't think NASA has a reputation for taking even mini-gambles," he said. "NASA is very conservative in this way."

Both scientists also pointed to the evidence of radar scanning of the landing site from earth, which tends to confirm that it is comparatively flat. But some experts have questioned the accuracy of this technique.

Astronaut David Scott, commander of the Apollo 15 mission which is scheduled for launch on July 26, said he and his crew spent a whole evening questioning the radar experts and concluded that their data was "pretty good."

"I don't think we have any hesitancy about our landing at all," Scott said.

How does he explain the apparent differences between scientists Allen and Brett?

"Joe is saying 'We don't know exactly what is there because we have not seen a picture of it' and Robin Brett is saying 'I know, because I know what's north of there in the same kind of area. Therefore I, as a geologist, know that the Mare surface at the landing site is the same as the Mare surface just north,'" he explained.

"So it is two opinions," Scott said. "and I guess I would have to go along with Robin and say 'Gee, Robin, you're an expert and we are believing the people who are experts..."

"You have to believe the experts in anything," he said.

Use July Vegetables To Spark Summer Meals

By Christine Laws Co. Home Demonstration Agent

Summertime . . . . when trees are green and flowers are blooming. Vegetables beckon with their bright colors too. And the produce section of your supermarket is brimming with a selection of bright, fresh vegetables for you.

July plentiful foods list include fresh vegetables, especially tomatoes, sweet corn, cucumbers, cabbage, celery, and carrots. What a marvelous opportunity to brush up on your vegetable cookery and serve medleys of the colorful produce often.

The color of vegetables will give you an idea of what they have in store for your family in the way of vitamins. Look for the freshest choice of these plentiful foods to get the most from your grocery money.

Bright orange, mature carrots and deep orange vegetables such as sweet potatoes offer the most in Vitamin A. Dark green leaves of leafy vegetables are richer in nutrients particularly vitamins A and C, than light green leaves. Use the tops of beets, turnips and other root vegetables in addition to spinach, kale and collards to provide a good amount of vitamins in the diet.

Make full use of vine-ripened tomatoes in summer when they are plentiful and inexpensive. Tomatoes that ripen on the vine in summer sunlight are twice as rich in Vitamin C as those grown in greenhouses in winter. You can tell the difference in the taste.

Eggs, too, are plentiful in July. It's amazing what hard - cooked eggs can add to vegetable dishes in the way of nutrients and decoration!

There are several tasty recipes to gt you started on the summertime habit of serving egg -vegetable medleys to your family.

SUPER SUPPER SALAD

2 tbsps. unflavored gelatin
1/4 cup cold water
2 cups diced chicken
2 cups chicken broth
1-1/2 cups cooked, mixed vegetables--peas, carrots, sweet corn, string beans
2 hard-ciijed eggs
1/4 cup chopped stuffed olives

Soak gelatin in cold water 5 minutes, then dissolve in hot chicken broth (canned chicken may be used). Cool. Set mold in cold water and decorate the bottom with slices of egg and olives. Cover with a thin layer of chicken broth and let set. Then arrange chicken and vegetables in alternate layers, pouring a little broth over each layer and allowing it to set before proceeding. Letting the mold stand in ice water will quicken the process. When firm, remove salad from old and cut into fairly thick slices. Serve individual protions on lettuce with mayonnaise garnish.

TOMATO FLOWER SALAD

6 chilled tomatoes
1/2 cup chopped celery lettuce lettuce
1/2 cup chopped cucumber
1 tbsp. minced onion
1/2 cup cooked sweet corn
1 tbsp. chopped green pepper
2 tbsps. mayonnaise
2 hard cooked eggs, chopped
1 tsp. salt
Black pepper

Cut stem ends from tomatoes. Cut tomatoes four times from the top almost through to the bottom, to form eight attached "petals." Spread petals apart on lettuce-lined plates. Combine other ingredients, and put filling into centers of the "flowers". Chill. Serve with a dollop of mayonnaise as garnish and a sprinkling of paprika. They make attractive, colorful salads.

How To Decorate Corners

Wondering how to solve the decorating problem of a bare eye-catching corner? Here are ideas from Jan Slabaugh, Extension housing and home furnishings specialist at Texas A&M University.

One secret, Mrs. Slabaugh says, is to soften the total effect by using light and color. Try a hanging lamp with a good-sized plant beneath. You can even let the lamp hang into or behind the plant, allowing light to come through the plant.

Furniture also can be used to liven up and soften corners, she continues. Use either tall or low pieces, but add decorative wall treatment to give height with lower ones.

The furniture pieces can be functional as well as decorative. Pieces being used, such as pier and corner cabinets, serve as storage for books or show off attractive accessories.

Milk Can Be 'Eaten' Explains Food Specialist

Do I have to drink milk? That's an often repeated question, says Frances Reasonover, Extension foods and nutrition specialists at Texas A&M University.

Drinking milk isn't the only way to meet the daily milk requirement, Miss Reasonover points out. Children and pregnant women, who need 3 or more cups of milk a day, and teens and nursing mothers, who need 4 or more cups daily, probably must consume a large part of the milk as a beverage, but they don't have to drink all of it.

Several milk products and other foods supply about as much calcium as one cup fresh whole milk or one cup milk made from nonfat dry milk.

These include 1 cup custard; 1 cup pudding made from milk and cornstarch; 1 cut oyster stew; 1 1/3 cups canned cream soup prepared with an equal volume of milk; 1/3 of a 14-inch pizza with cheese topping; 3/4 cup homemade macaroni and cheese; and 1 milk shake made with 3/4 cup milk and 1/2 cup ice cream.

Or, you may add nonfat dry milk to other foods. For example, "eat" part of your daily milk need in meat loaf, Miss Reasonover suggests.

Boaters Should Know Rules For Safe Summer

"Preliminary figures for the first six months of 1971 show that 162 persons have lost their lives in Texas in water-oriented accidents," according to the General Manager of the Texas Safety Association.

Lloyd F. Palmer said that though the figure is lower than for the same period last year, the most dangerous months of the year are just beginning as far as water-related accidents and deaths are concerned.

"Traditionally such deaths show a sharp increase in June, July, and August as more and more Texans take to the water for recreation," the safety expert said.

In the first six months of 1970, according to Texas Parks and Wildlife Water Safety Services statistics, 182 persons were water oriented accident casualties. Palmer said that the toll for the first half of this year might run higher when final reports become available.

July 4-10 has been designated 'Safe Boating Week' in Texas by Gov. Preston Smith this year to emphasize the need for greater boating and water safety," Palmer said.

"From the time the boat and trailer are hooked up to the car, until it is safely home again, the possibilities of accidents are very real," the safety leader said.

He said first the boater should make sure the trailer load capacity is suited to carry the weight of the boat and motor. Trailer stop and turn lights, and brakes should also be checked. Periodic examinations should be made on trailer wheel bearings, and tires should be properly inflated.

Palmer said that when the boat owner prepares for his trip to the water there are some simple steps that will help make the journey safer and more pleasurable.

Palmer said that before starting on the trip, the boater should go through the following highway safety checklist. Start at the front of the rig, make sure the trailer hitch is tight, safety chains are tight and not dragging, the bow is firmly in position and winch line is tight, the transom and stern tiedowns are tight, lights are in good working order, and contact points between hull and trailer are padded.

The safety leader also said that as a boater travels to the water, it is imp0rtant to remember that towing adds weight and momentum to the car. It will require greater distances to stop than under normal driving conditions. He said the driver should allow for extra length when turning, and observe the speed limits for towing trailers. In Texas, the law sets 60 miles per hour as a maximum speed during daylight and 55 m.p.h. as a maximum at night while towing most boat trailers.

The TSA executive said there is one general rule of boating safety, "It is as simple as ABC, 'Always be careful'."

He outlined these other basic rules for safer boating activities.

1. Always provide required life-saving equipment for boats. Under state law there must be an approved flotation device for every person aboard. Anew law requires passengers under 12 years of age to wear approved life preservers while in motorboats.

2. Be prepared to fight fires. State law also requires each powered boat to be equipped with a fire extinguisher.

3. Take no chances with rough weather. Respect wind and storm warnings. The best policy is to stay ashore if bad weather threatens. If caught out in rough weather, don life-saving devices, head for the nearest sheltered shore, and above all keep calm.

4. Always observe the capacity rating of the boat. Overloading creates a greater danger of capsizing.

5. When waterskiing, consideration for others is a must. Don't speed past anchored or docked boats. While towing a skier there must be at least two responsible people in the boat, a pilot and an observer who can watch the skier. Never ski at dusk or after dark.

6. If your boat capsizes or is swamped, stay with the craft. Help is usually not long in coming.

7. Keep boats clean at all times. Oil soaked rags and waste should not be kept on board, as they increase the dangers of fire.

8. Always stay seated in small boats. Persons standing in small boats change the center of gravity and reduce the stability of the craft.

9. Know the signals for distress. By day, in a small boat, signal distress by slowly raising and lowering outstretched arms. On larger craft, give four blasts on the horn, fly the National Ensign upside down, or use smoke. By night, flashlights, flares, rockets, or controlled fire should be used to signal problems.

10. If you are involved in a collision, or are nearby when a collision occurs, standby and render assistance.

AAA Warns Motorists About Garage Rackets

Reports made to the American Automobile Association from motorists driving through the Southwestern states indicate that garage rackets are flourishing.

This is not simply the slipshod, inept sort of service that irritates and frustrates car owners. Rather it is the employment of deception by a few garages and service stations to defraud motorists into buying unneeded tires, parts and accessories.

In Arizona garage rackets are so prevelant that the state's Attorney General's office has recently initiated a statewide campaign to combat unscrupulous service station practices. Travelers are warned of fraudulent practices by radio messages prepared by the attorney general's office and teams of investigators driving pretested vehicles are making spot checks on stations along the states' interstate highways.

A variety of methods to defraud the traveler is being used. Slashing tires with a sharp instrument is often done. Squirting oil on or under fuel pumps and shock absorbers are common plays.

Sometimes the deceptive methods are more crude - such as disconnecting a wire to the starter, then removing the starter, allegedly replacing it with a rebuilt one which turns out to be the same starter that was there before.

Victims all but invariably are in cars with out-of-state license plates. Favorite targets are women motorists and the elderly.

To reduce chances of being cheated the AAA suggests that motorists patronize stations selling a well-known brand of gas in the larger cities.

Always leave someone with the car while it is being checked over. Look over the attendant's shoulder while he checks the oil and water levels.

If you buy a replacement part, insist that the supposedly defective tire or accessory be placed in the trunk for later checking.

Suppose it turns out that you have been swindled. The thing to do is complain: to the oil company, to the AAA, to the Better Business Bureau having jurisdiction over the area where the event occurred, to the tourist promotion agency in the state even to the governor of that state.

This may result in an adjustment for you and will help to assure other motorists traveling your path of honest service.

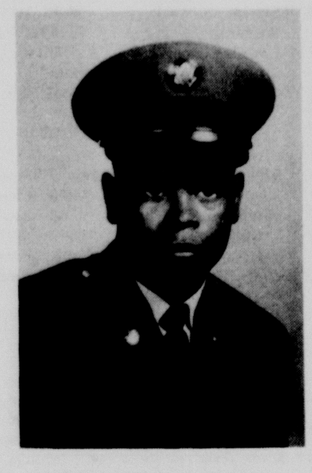
HOLE IN ONE MOUTH

Sydney, Australia, Reuter - A hole in one by a golfer near here recently left a passing motorcyclist speechless. The ball penetrated the plastic windscreen of the motorcycle and stuck in the rider's mouth. He was surprised, but not hurt.



John Cavil Decorated For Heroism

Army Specialist Four John C. Cavil of Cameron was decorated with the Army Commendation Medal with "V" Device for his actions on March 18, 1971.

According to the commendation, the medal was awarded "for heroism in connection with ground operations against a hostile force in the Republic of Vietnam.

"Specialist Four John C. Cavil distinguished himself while serving as an acting squad leader with Battery B, 4th Battalion 60th Artillery.

"His squad was a part of the assault force with the mission to neutralize an enemy blocking force in the village of Ap Phu Quang. Upon receiving enemy fire, Specialist Four Cavil's duster returned devastating fire.

"When the duster took a direct hit, he was thrown from the gun tub. His first reaction, even though he was seriously wounded, was for the welfare of his men and he personally assisted them into the safety of the armored personnel carrier.

"Specialist Four Cavil's acts of heroism and valor reflect great credit upon himself, his unit, and the United States Army."

Baylor Sets Mid Summer Registration

WACO

Registration for Baylor University's second session of summer school will be held July 10 and July 12 on the balcony of Waco Hall on the Baylor campus.

Van D. Massirer, Baylor registrar, said registration will be from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. on July 10 and from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. on July 12.

Students entering the second summer session who did not attend the first session must pick up their registration packets in the Data Processing Center of the Sid Richardson Science Building prior to registering, Massirer said.

Those who attended the first summer school session but have not registered for the second session, however, need only present their student identification cards and adviser slips when registering.

Students entering the second summer session who did not attend the first session should register at the time indicated on their packets. Those who attended the first summer school session but have not registered for the second should call the registrar's office for their registration time.

Classes for the second session of summer school begin July 12, although some registration also will be taking place that day. Massirer advised students registering on July 12 to do so between classes.

Late registration will begin July 14 in the registrar's office in Pat Neff Hall and will continue until July 17.

Massirer said Baylor's enrollment figure for the 82nd summer session reached 2,556 during the first session and is expected to climb to more than 3,000 by the end of the summer.

BLESSINGS!

But just who amongst us could count them? Do you still get a thrill when our grand old flag goes by, when it is raised over a school or public building? Does your quiet inner pride bubble over? If so, then America is still the greatest despite all the frustrating variances. Your belief in your country helps build that greatness. Your belief in the democratic process and the pioneering spirit makes you a part of it.

For every soldier over seas, countless students back home are studying governments, for every fire bomb thrown in anger, thousands of kids are throwing footballs; and for every man on strike, multitudes are happy on their jobs.

So the chances are a thousand to one that America is still the greatest. Maybe you should "love it or leave it." The boys over seas believe in it. The great majority of students believe in it. The industrialists believe in it and you too can believe in it. Believe in its democratic ideals which foster change. Believe in the guidance of God, the innate goodness of man, and the vibrant strength of your own will.

It's a good time to start counting your blessings right now. God isn't stingy. His world is at our disposal.

Count your blessings and your neighbors blessings on your way to worship this week.
